Incidence of illegal questions asked of medical students during orthopaedic surgery residency interviews

Principal Investigator: Adam Schiff, MD
Co-investigators/collaborators: Tomas Liskutin (medical student), Karen Wu, MD, Lukas Nystrom, MD, Elizabeth Harkin, MD (resident)

This study focuses on the types of questions that applicants are asked during interviews to Orthopaedic Surgery programs. We are now working on a follow-up study examining the incidence of these questions across all specialty interviews. Furthermore, we are looking at those people who perform the interviews to see if they receive training on potential illegal interview questions and whether these questions get asked.
